

RADICAL STATISTICS

Radical Statistics 4th Biennial Critical Essay Competition

The judges would like to thank all contestants for their entries. Some very interesting essays were submitted and it was not easy to select the winners.

Winning essays will be published in Radical Statistics' upcoming newsletter - expected to go to press in early March, 2009.

In the Open category, the judges have decided to award:

First prize	£300	Luis Aviles
Second prize	£200	Sarah Dalglish

In the Student category the decision was even more difficult, and the prize money has been split to allow three contestants to win prizes. The judges award prizes as follow:

First prize now	£250	Peter Baker
Second prize now	£150	Christo Albor
Third prize now	£100	Hannah Warren

Lastly, may we thank all the contestants including those not awarded a prize. Do let us know if you would like your essay to be considered by the editors of Radical Statistics as a contribution to a future newsletter.

Janet Shapiro
essay@radstats.org.uk