

Detail of Whitechapel area of London from Charles Booth's hand-coloured Map of Poverty c. 1888-9 © Museum of London. The buildings coloured red indicate streets classified as 'middle class', whilst the cooler colours, ranging from light blue to black, indicate degrees of poverty from high to low.